Stacy Ransom

A little about me: I am currently an Early Childhood Education teacher and run a family child care and preschool business in my home. When I'm not creating lesson plans and taking care of children, I like to blog. I am also the president of a non-profit child care provider support organization. I have started my bachelor's degree in Integrated Leadership Studies with an Early Childhood Education Emphasis at UW-Green Bay. My family consists of my husband of 20+ years, our teenage son and our two Ragdoll cats. My many interests include digital scrapbooking and gardening. I love to create! I'm a bit of a perfectionist and value the details. My past work history includes shop at home sales, interior designer/furniture sales, and administrative assistant. All those experiences have brought me where I am today.

The Blog

Share & Remember started out as a family blog. I shared family photos and details of our family life. Soon it grew into more as I shared my child care and preschool activities and ideas. Now it is an accumulation of many things I enjoy - family, home decorating, food and recipes, crafts, and Early Childhood Education. I love to take photos and share my ideas with others. I especially enjoy creating customized blog posts for brands featuring their products or presenting an idea that promotes the brand. My activities for children, printable resources, and food posts are especially popular.
